OBAMA ADMINISTRATION NAMES MOLLY LAMBERT TO SERVE AS STATE DIRECTOR FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT IN VERMONT AND NEW HAMPSHIRE

WASHINGTON, January 15, 2010 — The Obama Administration today announced that Molly Lambert will serve as Vermont and New Hampshire State Director for USDA Rural Development.

“Molly Lambert will be an important advocate on behalf of rural communities throughout the state and will help administer the valuable programs and services provided by USDA that can enhance economic success,” Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack said.

Lambert, from Swanton, Vt., served as president of the Vermont Captive Insurance Association in 2002. As president, she acted as spokesperson of Vermont’s captive industry and developed a strategic plan to regulate captive insurance. From 1998 to 2002, Lambert was the Secretary of Commerce and Community Development, a cabinet-level position in Governor Dean’s Administration. Lambert advised Governor Dean on key public policy issues such as economic development, housing and tourism. She also sought to improve local business in Burlington in her role as executive director of the Church Street Marketplace. During her directorship, she was a key advisor to Burlington’s Mayor and administered a $500,000 budget.

Rural Development administers and manages more than 40 housing, business, and community infrastructure and facility programs as laid out by Congress through a network of 6,100 employees located in 500 national, state and local offices. These programs are designed to improve the economic stability of rural communities, businesses, residents, farmers and ranchers and improve the quality of life in rural America. Rural Development has an existing portfolio of more than $125 billion in loans and loan guarantees.
